- Students' academic achievement, strengths, and areas for development are communicated to parents by their teachers.
- Parents and teachers talk about ways to help the child learn and grow at home and at the institute.
- Together, parents and educators can establish attainable goals for the academic and personal growth of their children.
- Parents get the chance to voice any worries they may have regarding their child's education, behaviour during placement, or general wellbeing during PTMs. To properly address these issues, teachers can offer their perspectives and recommendations.
- PTMs facilitate a supportive atmosphere for the student's overall development by assisting in the development of a positive relationship between parents and teachers.

6. Outcome of the programme

The outcomes of parent-teacher meetings (PTMs) can have several positive impacts on students, parents, and teachers alike. Here are some common outcomes:

- PTMs help parents and teachers communicate in an honest and efficient manner. Understanding a student's development, skills, shortcomings, and any issues that require attention is made easier with clear communication.
- Parents who actively participate in their children's education through PTMs are more likely to monitor their progress, assist with their learning at home, and take part in departmental events. Better academic results for students are a result of this involvement.
- Through PTMs, teachers gain insights into the students learning style, and any challenges they may be facing outside of institute.
- During PTMs, collaborative goal-setting guarantees that students, parents, and teachers have same expectations and goals. This clarity aids in concentrating efforts to meet developmental goals in both academics and personal growth.
- PTMs provide a platform for discussing any concerns or challenges the students may be experiencing.
- Establishing a positive relationship between parents and teachers fosters trust, respect, and mutual understanding.
- PTMs allow for ongoing monitoring of the students' progress and adjustment of strategies as needed.
- Discussion was focused on student's specific strengths and weakness in individual subjects, various activities performed at department, administration and academics activities at department and institute.
- Parents Feedback and stakeholder was taken for reference. Parents expressed their happiness for having their ward studying in our esteemed institute.
- Parents expressed their gratitude regarding the care taken by the institute for the Growth of their wards.

In summary, the outcome of parent-teacher meetings is to create a collaborative partnership between home and school that promotes the holistic development and academic success of students. These meetings play a crucial role in fostering communication, engagement, support, and goal-setting to benefit the child's educational journey.
